JOBLING PURSER LTD

ENVIRONMENTAL POLICY STATEMENT

Jobling Purser Limited, a long established manufacturer of Bituminous products and surfacing materials for highway maintenance and civil engineering, automotive and industrial applications, recognises that Environmental Management should be an integral and fundamental part of the company's business strategy. To that end, the company will:

- Operate within standards required by environmental law and regulations.
- Endeavour to prevent pollution at it's premises and to minimise the generation of wastes and the use of energy.
- Consider, so far as is practicable, the environmental effects of it's products and services.
- Take steps to achieve the environmental expectations of it's customers and other interested parties.

The company is committed to the continual improvement of it's environmental performance by setting clear environmental objectives and targets. Action plans will be defined by the management team and progress will be monitored regularly. In order to achieve these aims, it is company policy to maintain an efficient and effective Environmental Management System based on the requirements of BS EN ISO 14001:1996.

The Environmental Policy has the unqualified support of the Managing Director and his management team. The HSEQ Systems Manager has the delegated responsibility to maintain and implement the Environmental Policy, and the organisational freedom to recognise and resolve environmental issues.

The HSEQ Systems Manager, being directly responsible to the Operations Director, shall act as the management representative in all environmental matters, and in this role shall be free from commercial and contractual constraints.

All personnel contribute to the environmental performance of the company and will be provided with the appropriate training. Compliance with the policy, systems and procedures is mandatory and no deviation shall be permitted without the approval of the Managing Director or the Operations Director.
